I visited Cordoba four years ago. I stayed there for one week and I really enjoyed it.

Everything was perfect in the city, people are very clean, they take care about their streets, and it is difficult to see places full of rubbish. I loved the way people decorate their houses with a lot of flowers and trees and also shops have a great presentation, some of them are very creative.

There are a lot of clubs where you can see many people going during the weekend to practice all kinds of sports and to spend the day with the family. But the most beautiful thing for me were the mountains. You can appreciate them better if are in the top of a building, for example in a hotel, like I was. It is a fantastic view.

People from Cordoba are very famous for their particular accent, and it is incredible how after spending only one week in the city you can finish talking in the same way. That was completely funny.
